GAZA | PROTECTION OF HEALTH CARE

Strike on Nasser Hospital

• MSF reported six deaths and 52 injuries in the strike on the hospital. [1]

• Emergency, radiology, laboratory and surgical services were put out of action. [1]

• Four countries said on 16 November that 150,000 tents were being prevented from entering Gaza. [40]

This week's issue covers attacks in Gaza and Myanmar and violence affecting civilians in Congo and Haiti. It also examines prosecutions of journalists in Azerbaijan, Nigeria and Israel; migrant children's detention in the United States; detention safeguards in Albania; and new charges over past massacres in Colombia. Other stories address women's access to health care in Afghanistan, Indigenous peoples' rights in Australia and death sentences and defence rights in Iran.

LEAD STORY

PALESTINE / GAZA

Strike on Nasser Hospital: deaths and another disruption to health care

Strike: 11–12 November • Humanitarian access statement: 16 November 2026

An Israeli airstrike hit Nasser Hospital in Khan Younis, in the southern Gaza Strip, overnight on 11–12 November. Médecins Sans Frontières (MSF) reported six deaths and 52 injuries, including a child and a surgeon. A United Nations account citing the World Health Organization recorded six deaths and 27 injuries. The discrepancy between the two injury figures remains unresolved. [1–2]

The strike also severely affected the hospital's capacity to provide treatment. Its emergency department, radiology, laboratory and operating theatres were put out of service, restricting access for the injured and for people awaiting treatment for other conditions. MSF said two of its doctors were operating on a patient in another hospital building when the attack occurred. [1]

The Israeli military and Shin Bet said the strike targeted a senior Hamas commander and other operatives. Their statement referred to the use of precision munitions and surveillance. MSF condemned the attack on the health facility. [1, 3–4]

In a joint statement dated 16 November, the foreign ministers of Australia, Canada, Italy and the United Kingdom said 150,000 tents and other essential supplies were being held at the border and prevented from entering Gaza. They said flooding after the first winter storm had worsened shelter needs and urged Israel to open crossings and allow aid to enter without delay. [40]

Israel's embassy in Australia said more than 820 requests for winter-related supplies had been approved, but many shipments had not yet been brought into Gaza by the organisations responsible for delivery. It maintained that Israel continued to facilitate shelter, food, water and medical assistance. [41]

Human rights and law

International humanitarian law protects medical units and personnel. Distinction between civilians and military objectives, proportionality and feasible precautions are fundamental safeguards. An allegation that an armed-group member is inside a hospital does not remove the duties to verify the target and assess expected civilian harm. [H1]

CONFLICT AND DISPLACEMENT

MYANMAR | Deadly airstrike hits a camp for displaced people

Incident: 13 November • Reports: 14–16 November 2026

Aftermath: damage following the strike in Ponnagyun, 14 November 2026. AFP / CNA. [6]

An airstrike hit Byarla displacement camp in Ponnagyun, Rakhine State, on 13 November. Initial DMG and AFP reports recorded 12 deaths and 18 injuries; Myanmar Now's 16 November report cited local sources reporting 13 deaths and 17 injuries. Sources attributed the strike to Myanmar's military. AFP said military officials could not be reached for comment. The destruction of shelters deepened the need for safety and urgent treatment among people already displaced from their homes. [5–6, 43]

Rights and law. Displacement does not diminish civilian protection. Distinction, proportionality and precautions in attack also protect camp residents. [H1]

DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC OF THE CONGO | South Kivu: more than 323,000 people estimated displaced

Data: 6–9 November • New report: 11 November 2026

Chambucha school, North Kivu, sheltering families from Kalehe. Source: Actualité.cd, 11 November 2026; capture date unspecified. [35]

Citing OCHA's 11 November assessment, La Prunelle and Actualité.cd reported that fighting in Kalehe and Kabare, South Kivu, displaced more than 323,000 people on 6–9 November. Families sought shelter in schools, places of worship, health centres and the Kahuzi-Biega forests. Some families fleeing Kalehe reached Chambucha school in neighbouring North Kivu. The Congolese army and M23-linked parties blamed one another for the escalation, while safe passage and aid delivery were severely disrupted. [7–9, 35]

Rights and law. Parties to the conflict must protect civilian life and safe humanitarian access. Loss of shelter and essential services threatens survival. [H1]

NIGERIA / NIGER | Nearly 64,000 people flee violence in Nigeria for Niger

New assessment: 10 November • Data: since the start of 2026

A UNHCR staff member meeting a person in a temporary shelter in Niger. Context photograph: UNHCR / UN News, report dated 10 November 2026; capture date unspecified. [51]

UNHCR's 10 November assessment reported that nearly 64,000 people had fled violence in northern Nigeria for Niger since the start of 2026. This is a cumulative annual figure, not a weekly total. Most arrived in Diffa and Tahoua. UNHCR said families, including children, had limited access to food, clean water, shelter and health care. It acknowledged land provided by Niger's authorities and host communities and requested $11.4 million for its response across three countries. [46–47]

Rights and law. Safe shelter, basic necessities and protection from discrimination are essential to displaced families' rights to life and health. [H2, H4]

VIOLENCE AND ACCOUNTABILITY

HAITI | New UN report documents extrajudicial executions and sexual violence

Report: 11 November • Data: 1 July–30 September 2026

Pierre, a community representative at a displacement site in Port-au-Prince. Context photo: OCHA / Gema Cortes, UN News. [36]

A report released by the UN Integrated Office in Haiti (BINUH) on 11 November recorded 1,167 deaths, 459 injuries and 344 victims of sexual violence between 1 July and 30 September. The death and injury totals are not limited to civilians. Cases of extrajudicial execution and attempted execution linked to police rose from 14 in the preceding quarter to 44. The findings underline the need to investigate security forces' conduct alongside violence by armed groups. [10–11]

Rights and law. The right to life and prohibition of torture apply during security operations; victims require protection and effective investigations. [H2]

COLOMBIA | New massacre charges and the Dabeiba judgment

Developments: 10 and 13 November • Events: 1999–2006

Court session shown in the JEP's Montes de María announcement. Photo: JEP, publication dated 10 November 2026. [12]

On 10 November, the Special Jurisdiction for Peace (JEP) announced war-crime and crime-against-humanity charges against nine former navy members and two former police officers over 32 Montes de María massacres. The 1999–2001 case covers 284 deaths and 107 instances of gender-based violence. [12–13] In the separate Dabeiba case, the JEP sentenced five former soldiers on 13 November over 18 incidents involving 35 direct victims. Defendants who acknowledged responsibility received special sanctions combining restrictions on liberty with restorative work. [45]

Rights and law. Charges and judgments are distinct procedural stages. Both cases concern life, access to truth and effective remedies. [H2]

UKRAINE | Forty-eight victims identified in Komyshuvakha

Update: 12 November • Strike: 2 November 2026

Search at the Komyshuvakha ruins. National Police of Ukraine / NV, report dated 12 November 2026. [32]

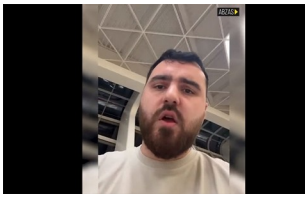

Citing Ukrainian authorities' 12 November update, Hromadske and NV reported two more bodies recovered and 48 victims identified at the Komyshuvakha school used for humanitarian aid distribution. Searches continue after the 2 November strike. Russia's Defence Ministry had previously said it targeted military units in the area. The new identifications help establish the fate of those missing after the attack affecting civilians gathered for aid. [31–32]

Rights and law. Civilian life and humanitarian operations are protected by distinction and precautions in attack. [H1]

PRESS FREEDOM

AZERBAIJAN | Meclis.info journalists receive nine- and ten-year sentences

Judgment: 12 November • CPJ statement: 13 November 2026

Imran Aliyev reporting his arrest at Baku airport, 18 April 2024. Archive: still from Abzas Media video / CPJ. [14]

Meclis.info journalists Imran Aliyev and Elgiz Gahraman received ten- and nine-year prison sentences respectively. Accountant Tamella Musayeva reportedly received an eight-year suspended sentence. Meydan TV and the Committee to Protect Journalists (CPJ) reported the 12 November judgment. The prosecution involved financial charges linked to foreign funding. The defendants and their supporters describe the case as retaliation for journalism. The lengthy sentences directly affect the continuation of independent reporting. [14–15]

Rights and law. Media-financing oversight must respect fair-trial and expression safeguards under Articles 6 and 10 of the European Convention on Human Rights. [H3]

NIGERIA | Daniel Ojukwu detained in prosecution over his reporting

Remand order: 10 November • CPJ: 11 November 2026

Archive portrait: Daniel Ojukwu. Photo: @Mazi_OJD / Premium Times; capture date unspecified. [16]

The Federal High Court in Abuja ordered FIJ reporter Daniel Ojukwu held in Kuje prison until 1 December. He denied 12 cybercrime and defamation charges linked to his 2023–2024 reporting about a presidential aide. Prosecutors allege reputational damage and fear of death. The court declined to release him on previous police bail, saying the new bail application was not ready for consideration. [16–17]

Rights and law. ICCPR Articles 9 and 19 require scrutiny of the grounds for detention and the necessity of restrictions on reporting. [H2]

EGYPT | Detention extended for six fact-checking journalists

Detention renewal and UN statement: 10 November 2026

Collage of photographs of the detained Matsadaash journalists. Seif El-Din Ahmed / Al Manassa, 2026. [48]

Egypt's Supreme State Security Prosecution extended the detention of six Matsadaash fact-checking journalists by 15 days on 10 November. Charges include joining and financing a terrorist group and publishing false news. The UN Human Rights Office called for immediate, unconditional release. Lawyers seek an independent investigation into alleged torture and coerced confessions. Prosecutors had said forensic reports found no injuries; the defence argues this does not replace an effective investigation. [48–49]

Rights and law. ICCPR Articles 7, 9 and 19 protect freedom from torture, personal liberty and freedom of expression. [H2]

LIBERTY AND JUSTICE

UNITED STATES | New Flores application seeks access to detained children

Application: 13 November • AP report: 14 November 2026

Archive: CBP's temporary processing centre in Donna, Texas, 25 February 2021. Photo: Jerry Glaser / CBP. [37]

Lawyers representing migrant children filed a new application in the Flores litigation on 13 November, seeking access to children held by US Customs and Border Protection (CBP). Children's Rights alleged that some had spent weeks in cold, windowless cells with inadequate food and limited contact with lawyers. According to AP's 14 November report, the Justice and Homeland Security departments did not immediately respond to requests for comment. [18–20]

Rights and law. Flores safeguards and Fifth Amendment due process concern detention conditions and children's access to legal protection. [19]

ALBANIA / EUROPE | ECtHR finds a violation in Beleri's continued detention

Judgment: 10 November 2026 • Period examined: 2023–2024

Fredi Beleri. Official portrait: European Parliament; capture date unspecified. [39]

In Beleri v. Albania on 10 November, the European Court of Human Rights found that mayoral candidate Fredi Beleri's continued detention from at least 19 July 2023 violated Article 5 § 3. It found no violation concerning his initial detention in May 2023. Domestic courts had relied on risks of flight, reoffending and interference with witnesses. The Court found excessive reliance on the charges' seriousness after indictment and insufficient consideration of changing circumstances and less restrictive measures. [21–22]

Rights and law. Continued detention requires individual, current grounds. Article 5 § 3 protects trial within a reasonable time or release pending trial. [H3]

ISRAEL | Journalist Said Hasanein convicted over television interview

Reported judgment: 15 November 2026 • Interview: February 2025

Television image of Said Hasanein. Archive: Safa; recording date unspecified. [23]

According to Safa and Mawteni48, Haifa District Court convicted journalist Said Hasanein over a February 2025 interview with Al-Aqsa television. The judgment reported on 15 November concerns contact with a foreign agent and solidarity with a terrorist organisation; sentencing was left to a separate stage. The defence argues that a public journalistic interview cannot constitute a clandestine foreign-agent relationship. [23–24]

Rights and law. ICCPR Articles 14 and 19 protect fair trials and expression; national-security restrictions must satisfy legality, necessity and proportionality. [H2]

HEALTH, DISCRIMINATION AND EXPRESSION

AFGHANISTAN | De facto restrictions block women's access to male doctors

Investigation: 12–13 November • Detention report: 15 November 2026

Context photograph: health care in Afghanistan. Mahsa Elham / Zan Times; capture date unspecified. [25]

Zan Times' 12 November investigation documented barriers to women receiving treatment from male doctors, with threats of imprisonment or clinic closure. It drew on interviews at dental clinics in 14 provinces and hospital departments in six. Amu TV reported on 15 November that two female health workers in Bamyan were held for 24 hours for travelling without male guardians; no comment from local Taliban authorities was reported. [25, 44]

Rights and law. Sex-based barriers to treatment engage non-discrimination and the right to health under ICESCR Articles 2(2) and 12. [H4]

AUSTRALIA | UN expert warns of setbacks in Indigenous peoples' rights

Visit: 2–13 November • Preliminary findings: 13 November 2026

Albert Barume, in ABC's report of 13 November. ABC News / Geoff Kemp. [27]

UN Special Rapporteur Albert Barume's preliminary findings of 13 November raised concerns over Indigenous child removals, incarceration and weakening safeguards. He reported denial of some meetings and access to two detention facilities. A federal Attorney-General spokesperson welcomed the visit and said existing law protected rights. The Australian Human Rights Commission also stressed scrutiny and accountability. [26–28]

Rights and law. CRC Articles 9 and 37 safeguard family ties and protect children against unlawful deprivation of liberty. [H5]

IRAN | Death sentences for protesters and pressure on lawyers

New report: 16 November • Davoudi statements: 10–12 November 2026

Lawyer Amirsalar Davoudi. Archive portrait: Iran Human Rights; capture date unspecified. [33]

Iran Human Rights' (IHR) 16 November list covers 121 people sentenced to death at least at first instance over January protests: 67 cases verified by IHR, 45 from other organisations and nine from officials or lawyers; some face retrial. IHR also reported new espionage charges against lawyer Amirsalar Davoudi and denial of his lawyer's file access. Judicial authorities had previously cited propaganda and national-security investigations to explain his arrest. [33–34, 42]

Rights and law. Effective defence and file access are vital in capital proceedings. ICCPR Articles 6, 9 and 14 apply. [H2]

FRANCE | Complaint over police treatment of journalists

Developments: 10–14 November 2026

Police intervention pictured in LyonMag's report. Context photograph; capture date unspecified. [38]

SNJ filed a complaint over police treatment of journalists on 10 November. Following the 5 November Lyon intervention, the Rhône prefecture stressed press freedom and journalists' safety at a 12 November meeting. Reuters' 14 November investigation reported 161 inquiries into alleged police violence since September. Nearly 7,000 minors arrested is also a cumulative figure covering earlier school protests. Government officials blamed radical groups for violence. [29–30, 50]

Rights and law. ECHR Articles 10 and 11 protect reporting and peaceful assembly. [H3]
